

people
to know,
places
to go,
things to enjoy

CLIQUE

AQUA CULTURE ↗

New York designers Martin Schapira and Noam Kamelhar's custom aquariums are more like art installations than fishbowls: Their firm, Okeanos Aquascaping, specializes in designing, constructing, stocking, and maintaining tanks like the 450-gallon coral reef tank, shown here, for clients who think of them as design statements. "Most of our clients are not hobbyists. They are looking for a centerpiece that's not like anything else anyone else has," says Schapira, who became fascinated with aquariums as a child. "They might feed the fish once in a while, but we come about once a week and do everything else." See more of their work at okeanosgroup.com.

→ TRENDING NOW

What's new in home design? See for yourself at ICFF, between May 15th and 18th, when 500 exhibitors from 30 countries bring the latest furniture, flooring, lighting, kitchen, bath, and office designs for home and contract spaces to the Jacob Javits Convention Center. For more on the International Contemporary Furniture Fair, visit icff.com

PHOTOS COURTESY OF 2009 ICFF EXHIBITORS (LEFT) JOEL ESCALONA STUDIO AND (RIGHT) BERT & DENNIS.